Danish brand Vipp may be best known for a pedal bin designed by Holger Nielsen in 1939, which was invited into the permanent architecture and design collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York (MoMA) – the only place where it functions strictly as décor.

Today, Vipp is still an independent, family-owned company. Their product portfolio includes kitchens, lighting, furniture, bathroom modules and home accessories – all true to Danish design tradition and Holger’s founding principles. They remain dedicated to building upon their heritage by doing things their way - continuously working to refine how people live through enduring products and experiences.

RIVET SERIES

Each rivet piece is one of a kind and hammered by hand using the traditional riveting technique.
